Fund Management Commentary

The LOYS Global fell by just under 1.3% in February. The last four weeks revealed some shifts on the international capital markets. While American technology stocks found themselves in more difficult waters, European dividend stocks were able to attract interest. The same applied to Chinese equities, which benefited from the emerging fantasy of 'artificial intelligence'. Meanwhile, long-term interest rates in Japan continued to rise. The local currency, the yen, appears to have broken its downward trend and has recently gained against other currencies. Towards the end of the month, the German elections created a positive mood for German equities. Following price rises, the LOYS Global fund management recently sold its positions in Coca-Cola, Nike and Johnson & Johnson. The Israeli internet platform company wix.com was newly included.

Important Information:

The gross value development (BVI method) takes into account all costs incurred at fund level (for example, the management fee) with the exception of any front-end load that may be incurred (this is otherwise marked separately). Additional costs may be incurred individually at customer level (e.g. custody account fees, commissions and other fees). Model calculation (net): One investor would like to purchase units for EUR 1000. With a maximum initial sales charge of 5%, he or she must spend a one-off of EUR 50. Additionally, custody account costs may be incurred which affect the performance of the portfolio reduce the deposit costs. The custody account costs result from the price and service list of your Bank. Historical performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance. Predictive statements are based on assumptions. Since all assumptions, predictions and statements simply reflect the current view of future events, they are quite naturally subject to inherent risks and uncertainties. Thus, they should not be regarded as guarantees or promises regarding future performance. Investors are alerted that future performance can vary greatly from past results. Especially performance results referring to a period of less than twelve months (Year-to-date-performance, start of investment fund within the last twelve months) does not reliably indicate future results due to the short period of comparison. Hence, the future performance of the investment cannot be guaranteed.
