

Investment Strategy

The investment strategy of the LOYS Global MH Fund may generally be categorized as "Long/Short Equity, long biased". Our edge is the identification and exploitation of undervalued stocks on the international developed equity markets. Our investment universe thereby is not limited to specific countries or sectors; in principle any stock exchange traded company all around the world can be a potential investment. On basis of a fundamental bottom-up analysis, the fund will trade equity that is significantly undervalued. We demand a margin of safety and do not enter a new position until we have identified a high-quality share that trades with at least 30% discount to its fair value. The foremost criteria for the portfolio composition is the absolute attraction of the traded company itself, which is measured by the degree of the undervaluation that we have identified. The composition of the fund solely depends on the number and the attraction of the available equity that meet our requirements. Accordingly, the fund does not have to be fully invested on the equity markets: whenever the portfolio manager considers that no or not enough investment opportunities are meeting our criteria described above, the fund holds cash.

Fund Management Commentary

LOYS Global MH suffered a decline in net asset value of around 2.3% over the past four weeks. Meanwhile, rising interest rates at the long end of the yield curve caused concern in the financial markets. The general impression is that inflation is proving to be reasonably persistent, especially in food and services. In addition, rising energy costs are considered possible in the coming months. Meanwhile, the topic of 'artificial intelligence' once again captivated the stock markets. The American semiconductor manufacturer Nvidia presented splendid quarterly figures and raised its outlook substantially. Despite this, many companies reported slowing business, so that earnings estimates for several stocks had to be trimmed. In LOYS Global MH, there were additions made in Nokia and Federated Hermes. Philips from the Netherlands was sold at a good profit after a deal with the Italian Agnelli family, who acquired a stake in the company.

Important Information:

¹The gross value development (BVI method) takes into account all costs incurred at fund level (for example, the management fee) with the exception of any front-end load that may be incurred (this is otherwise marked separately). Additional costs may be incurred individually at customer level (e.g. custody account fees, commissions and other fees). Model calculation (net): One investor would like to purchase units for EUR 1000. With a maximum initial sales charge of 5%, he or she must spend a one-off of EUR 50. Additionally, custody account costs may be incurred which affect the performance of the portfolio reduce the deposit costs. The custody account costs result from the price and service list of your Bank.
